From the President

NMCOP—Psychoanalysis, Social Work Style

Hopefully, by the time you read this we will be enjoying a marvelous educational and networking experience at our conference, “The Examined Life,” in wintry Chicago. Thank you, Barbara Berger and your colleagues, presenters and guest speakers for a wonderful, rich program.

For some reason, finding a relevant focus for this column has been particularly elusive. There really isn’t any burning issue on the professional scene at the moment. The Democrats have not had a chance to put together any health care legislation for us to consider. At first I thought our “multiple identities” as clinicians might be a good topic on the occasion of this conference, but it didn’t quite come together. Fortunately, as often happens, a useful memory returned early this morning.

While studying in a social work doctoral program, I took a course about patterns of practice. The content was actually about developing awareness about your own pattern of practice by studying practice patterns across many social work settings. As the only clinical social worker in the classroom, I was particularly curious about how the professor would handle the mental health setting. Rather shockingly, she began by saying, “Freud is dead! I do not want him mentioned in this class. He is irrelevant.” Imagine my surprise! We have at least 70 advanced-training institutes in the New York Metropolitan area offering courses on Freud’s contributions as well those of theorists who built their theories on his seminal works.

In a further surprise, one of the articles we were required to read was a study completed by Kam-fong Monit Cheung, a Hawaiian social worker, on the relationships between the social work profession and other disciplines (1990). She had analyzed the contents of 11 social work journals published from 1981 to 1985 and found that the journals cite references in their bibliographies from 46 disciplines. Most frequently referenced was social work, followed by psychiatry, psychology, and sociology.
The early positive response to our upcoming Conference—“The Examined Life”—has generated much excitement among us. Barbara Berger and her committee are bringing us a remarkable lineup of plenary speakers, including Nancy McWilliams and Salman Akhtar, and many high quality presentations and panels on a wide variety of topics. And along with these superb educational opportunities, I can assure you, will be an equal amount of fun and opportunity to meet and interact with friends old and new. Please join us in Chicago!

Congratulations to California members on the creation of a new area in Orange County. Karen Redding, an organizer and the first area chair of the group, has written an article introducing us to the area and telling us about the activities of their first year. Good luck, and welcome to all! A second important happening in Southern California is the passing of the mantle of area chair of So. California from Ellen Ruderman to Joan Rankin. Ellen has served in this capacity since the beginning of the area 18 years ago. Her contributions to Southern California and to the NMCOP at large are too numerous to mention. Thanks to Ellen from the organization for her contributions, and a particular thanks from the Newsletter for all her help and encouragement over the past 10 years. We met Joan at our in-person board meeting last year and she is bright, energetic, and full of good ideas. We welcome her and look forward to working with her. Thanks to Joan for her article introducing us to her.

The Newsletter welcomes readers’ letters, articles, and opinions on topics of the day, clinical issues, book reviews, notices or reports of conferences, and news of interest to our membership. The Newsletter encourages social workers who have an interest in writing to use the Newsletter as a vehicle for converting their interest into the writing process.

Thanks to all contributors to this issue: Bob Adams, Barbara Berger, Gerald Perman, Joan Rankin, Karen Redding, Penny Rosen, Diana Siskind, and Marsha Wineburgh. ■
On Friday, September 15, 2006, the Austrian Embassy in Washington, D.C., hosted four psychoanalytic groups to present their thoughts on the occasion of Freud’s 150th birthday on the theme “Freud’s Place in Our Minds: A Day of Reflection on Sigmund Freud’s Significance in the 21st Century.” The event was moderated by Austrian Ambassador Eva Nowotny and organized by Cultural Attache Ms. Margareta Ploder in conjunction with the various analytic groups. The afternoon session consisted of 22 five-minute talks by representatives from the American Academy of Psychoanalysis and Dynamic Psychiatry, the American Psychoanalytic Association, Division 39 of the American Psychological Association, and the National Membership Committee on Psychoanalysis in Clinical Social Work. The evening panel had social historian Eli Zaretsky, PhD, give the keynote address and six analytic speakers each give ten-minute talks on Freud’s Relevance in the 21st Century. Thomas Aichhorn, PhD, grandson of August Aichhorn, who helped Freud escape from Vienna in 1938, represented the Viennese Psychoanalytical Society.

The hospitality of our hosts and the grandeur of the Austrian Embassy were exceptional. The embassy is situated on a cul-de-sac and we entered from the street into a foyer where we were greeted with a smiling welcome. We then passed through the grand hall set up for the evening panel with a podium toward the rear and rows of seats on either side arranged to accommodate the 300 registered guests. Along the entire wall of the hall was a photographic exhibition of fin de siècle Vienna, including photos of Freud, Einstein, Pablo Casals, and other contemporaries of Freud, as well as several nudes taken by the same photographers. Refreshments were set up for before the afternoon session and included coffee and tea, red and white Austrian wine, cookies, and chocolate-covered biscotti. We were then ushered into a large-windowed room with tables arranged in a big circle for the afternoon five-minute speakers. In front of each seat on the table was a black leather placemat with the program and brief bios of all participants. Microphones were placed between each two speakers. Perhaps two dozen seats were arranged along the wall around the room for the small number of invited guests. The embassy had recently hosted meetings of the European Union in the same room, and Ambassador Nowotny said that the room had a much lighter and airier feel to it that day than it had had the previous week.

In describing the five-minute presentations (were these the five minutes that were lost when managed care circumcised the 50-minute hour down to its current 45 minutes?), I will present some of the ideas expressed on that Friday afternoon. The afternoon speakers representing the academy included Drs. Stanley Palombo, Ann-Louise Silver, Cesar Alfonso, Joseph Merlino, and L. Gordon Kirschner. The topics addressed included “Freud’s Legacy and New Challenges in Clinical Treatment,” “The Application of Psychoanalysis in Non-clinical Domains,” “Freud’s Model of the Mind and Its Significance for Modern Life,” and “Psychoanalysis and Society: Can Psychoanalysis Help to Understand Modern Conflicts?” (I will not connect topics with speakers since I don’t remember all the topics, and speakers not mentioned would feel slighted.) One of the first presenters, joking about the task of writing a five-minute presentation, gave a quote commonly misattributed to Mark Twain: “I have made this letter longer than usual, because I have not had time to make it shorter.” The quote was actually by the 17th-century French philosopher and mathematician Blaise Pascal (1623–1662) written in a letter to a friend. The original French version: “Je n’ai fait cette letter—ci plus longue que parce que je n’ai pas eu le loisir de la faire plus courte.”

Presentations by members of the first panel on new challenges in clinical treatment included the continuing importance of applying psychoanalytic understanding to patients suffering from psychotic illness, the relationship of psychoanalysis to neuroscience, the relevance of analytic concepts of the unconscious, transference and social justice, and similarities and differences in transference across cultures. In the panel on non-clinical domains, the chair led off with a brief discussion of Freud’s influence on culture and nationality followed by a talk on sublimation using Freud’s under-

See Freud’s Place on page 16...
Working with Parents Makes Therapy Work
by Kerry Kelly Novick & Jack Novick
(reviewed by Diana Siskind, MSW)

I was very pleased to be asked to review this book for several reasons. Kerry and Jack Novick have consistently made important contributions to our profession and they present their ideas in a clear well thought out manner. It is always a pleasure to read their books and articles and to listen to their presentations. But this book had a very special appeal for me because in 1995, when I set out to write a book on this same subject, my search of the literature produced very few articles. I was shocked that this important aspect of a child therapist’s work was so seriously neglected in the literature. Approaching this uncharted territory was daunting at first, but then I realized that my own work with parents, combined with my theoretical knowledge, was enough to begin, and I did. Working with Parents: Establishing the Essential Alliance in Child Psychotherapy and Consultation was published in 1997. Since then, some articles and presentations on the therapist’s work with the parents of child patients have begun to appear. A particularly fine one by Arietta Slade, called “Working with Parents in Child Psychotherapy: Engaging the Reflective Function,” was published in a 2006 issue of Psychoanalytic Inquiry. However, the Novicks are, to my knowledge, the only authors of an entire book that addresses work with the parents of children in treatment in depth and detail, using a psychoanalytic developmental framework.

The Novicks’s book is divided into 11 chapters, beginning with a very interesting review of the history of the place of parents in child analysis. They trace and describe various attitudes of analysts toward the parents of their child patients and of the prevalent resistance to working with parents that often blocked this important and needed aspect of our work.

It is worthwhile to name the chapters, as they give the reader a clear picture of how the book is organized and what it offers.

Chapter 1: Parent Work—Introduction and History
Chapter 2: Our Assumptions When We Work with Parents
Chapter 3: The Evaluation
Chapter 4: Recommendations, Setting the Frame, and Working Conditions
Chapter 5: The Beginning Phase of Treatment
Chapter 6: The Middle Phase of Treatment
Chapter 7: The Pretermination Phase of Treatment
Chapter 8: The Termination Phase of Treatment
Chapter 9: Posttermination
Chapter 10: The Application of Our Model of Parent Work to Individual Treatment
Chapter 11: Summary and Further Questions

At the end of the book, they provided three tables that highlight and review some of the main points and ideas presented in the book. They also provide a questionnaire which they send to parents to be completed and returned prior to their first meeting.

As suggested by the chapter titles, the reader is taken through progressive stages of the child’s treatment and of the concurrent parent work. The authors state very emphatically that parent work is essential to allowing the child’s treatment to evolve and reach a point where it is no longer needed. However, they also state that enabling growth in the parents is an equally important component of the therapist’s parent work. The therapeutic alliance with the parents is the most important requisite for allowing the parent work to be effective and ongoing. The alliance with the parents cannot be static. It needs to move through stages that at first allow, and later support and help maintain, growth and changes in the child or adolescent. This can only happen when the work also enables and supports growth and change in the parents, with the goal of helping them attain their highest level of functioning as parents.

Throughout the book, the Novicks use the term “parent work” rather than parent therapy; yet they state: “Parent work includes interventions traditionally labeled as ‘therapeutic,’ for example, analysis of defense, verbalization, insight, reconstruction, interpretations, and the use of transference and countertransference for understanding and technique” (21). They also state: “At the onset we have to acknowledge a major technical issue in work with parents. Parents are not the designated patient” (27), but they do not give a name to what the parents are. This haziness about the position of the parents was and is of special interest to me. My position is that, although parents are not the designated patients, we can obviously not equate our contact with them to colleague or collateral contact. Therefore the unique place of parents in their child’s treatment falls in a special realm: they are somewhere on a continuum between being a patient and not being a patient. The Novicks are very pragmatic in regard to this area of the work. While they recognize that a technical issue exists here, they move on and don’t allow this matter to become an obstacle to the work at hand. They focus on their very strong conviction of the importance of ongoing parent work through all the stages of the child’s treatment, even when the parents have their own therapists. They state: “In our experience, use of the full range of therapeutic techniques in parent work does not compete or interfere with individual therapy with parents. Indeed, parent work may lead to acceptance of a referral for individual treatment while maintaining the relationship with the child’s analyst for work on parenting issues” (21). I wondered whether, in cases where the parent or parents have their own therapists, the authors engaged in contact with these therapists? I also wondered whether the knowledge that a parent was in his own treatment restricted the scope and depth of the Novicks’ interventions with the parent in question?

In the beginning of the book, the need for an extensive evaluation of child and parents is stressed, and I think most clinicians would agree, without reservations, to such a wise recommendation. In the early ’70s, when I worked at the Child Development Center of the Jewish Board of Family and Children’s Services, the evaluation process took an average of nine months and focused on both child and parents. Such an extensive evaluation, with so much contact between child, parents, and therapist, ultimately moves into an intermediate place somewhere between assessment and treatment. Everyone learns and everyone gains. Unfortunately, as most of you know, this has become harder and harder to come by, not only because of the adverse effect of HMOs and other insurance-generated obstacles but also because, currently, so many adults cannot tolerate uncertainty. Not having a definite plan would be too taxing for them. The authors are aware of this, and, in fact, bring up examples of situations where an extensive evaluation might threaten “the parents’ defensive position” (59). In such a situation, they suggest that rather than be tempted to begin the child’s treatment prematurely, it would be better to work on transforming parental guilt and anxiety into constructive concern.

The child’s right to confidentiality is always a delicate issue in child treatment. Parents usually want to know what is going on in their child’s treatment and feel shut out when this wish is not gratified. The authors do a lovely job of pointing out that the parents’ difficulty regarding their child’s confidentiality is a separation issue and go on to make a distinction between privacy, a given of mental life, and secrecy: “Motivated withholding that carries a connotation of knowledge used to feel powerful in relation to excluded others” (54).

This important distinction is useful in parent work as is active awareness in the therapist and, consequently, in the parents, that one of the goals of their child’s treatment is that development (theirs and that of the child) will afford greater closeness between them.

The authors allude to some of the difficult issues that complicate and threaten to sabotage parent work and lead to premature termination of the child’s treatment. One example of this is the obstacle that severe parental pathology might impose on the success of parent work. However the authors state: “The theory of two systems of self regulation gives us the idea of alternatives to closed systems, sado-masochistic beliefs, defenses, relationships and actions. This supports the therapist in having confidence that parents can find solutions different from omnipotent guilt, externalizing defenses, rages and wish for revenge—defense against deadness and trauma” (98). Those of you familiar with the Novicks’s work will appreciate how they apply their theoretical formulation of two systems of self regulation to parent work. For those not familiar with this useful construct, you will find it well explained in the body of the book and spelled out stage by stage in table number three (pages 173–74). In cases of severe parental pathology, one of the goals of parent work would always be to transform the parents’ closed system of self regulation into an open system, the first being pathological and the second, healthy. This, of course, would be the goal in any case wherein a patient or parent tended to respond to people and life in general with the attributes of a “closed” system: an omnipotent sadomasochistic response.

See Working with Parents on page 6...

This review is reprinted, with minor edits, from the Journal of Psychoanalytic Social Work, Volume 13, #2, 2006, with the kind permission of Jerry Brandell, its editor.

The note of confidence in the therapist’s ability to be effective and to find solutions to technical dilemmas is a strong theme throughout the book. This book has a ring of authority about it, a good kind of authority, one that stems from care, concern, and the determination to persevere, whatever obstacles may get in the way. So whether dealing with parental pathology, or a stormy divorce, or blended families with double the usual number of parents and parental rivalries, these authors convey a sense of feeling equipped. If their confidence trickles down to the reader, that too, is a good thing. And it must be, because when the book reached the section on adolescence, my surprise at their position was of a receptive nature. The Novicks feel strongly that work with the parents of adolescents is as necessary as it is at all other stages of a child’s development. This is not the usual attitude of therapists; the more customary one is to view the goal of adolescence as separation from the parents, and, consequently, parent work is seen as being in conflict with this goal. They write: “In our view, the goal of adolescent development and hence of treatment is not separation, but transformation of the parent-child relationship and integration of the new self-representation. In relation to the parents the goal is to transform the relationship into one that can incorporate the realities of biological and psychological change in adolescence and middle age” (122).

They disagree with the common attitude, held by some therapists, that older adolescents should be given license to “sow their wild oats” while in college, with parents turning a blind eye. In their formulation, the changing adolescent is able to transform his relationship with his parents in ways that allow him to use them as a “support and resource in the difficult lifelong task of personal growth . . . . The aim is not separation or solipsistic self sufficiency, but increasing mastery, responsibility, interdependency, and interrelatedness. Within this framework, the issue of confidentiality takes a proportionate place in the hierarchy of therapeutic and parental values” (123). And here they return to an earlier distinction made between privacy and secrecy: “Confidentiality should be maintained in support of privacy and not as a reflexive collusion with secrecy” (123).

One interesting side theme of the book rises out of the Novicks’s conviction of the compatibility of parent work with the parents’ or one parent’s individual treatment. They present some examples of the synergistic force that may be ignited by these dual-treatment situations and give an example of a father who “made crucial leaps forward in his own therapy under the impetus of parent work and was able to bring these gains into his personal life and his parenting” (139). What I found particularly interesting here is the recognition that child therapists who have a good deal of experience in work with parents have a deep understanding of parenthood in all its vicissitudes and are skilled in exploring aspects of the experience of being a parent that are often not sufficiently noted and understood by the therapists of adults. I have found that, quite often, therapists of adults shy away from addressing conflicts and anxieties arising from their patients’ parenting experience. It would then follow that such neglect would not be as likely in cases where the adult patient is also in an ongoing therapeutic relationship with his or her child’s therapist.

In the fine article by Arrieta Slade mentioned at the beginning of this review, her goal in parent work is to engage the parents’ reflective functioning, which allows for a clearer view and understanding of their child. This is compatible with the Novicks’s open system of self regulation and compatible with my view that the power of therapeutic alliance and of the therapist’s finely tuned work with parents has the potential of enabling them to discover and develop their inner resources, and consequently begin to know and understand their child in a new and more authentic way. While the Novicks’s thinking is compatible with that of Dr. Slade and with mine, there are differences of emphasis and approach. It is useful and thought provoking to be exposed to these variations in point of view.

In conclusion, this beautifully organized book ends with a fine summary chapter that highlights the important formulations made throughout the book. The writing style is concise, clear, elegant, and forceful. The tone of authority it carries arises out of the deep commitment and belief of the authors that, to do good work, therapists must demand conditions that will allow change, growth, and transformation to occur. It is an antidote to the current tendency toward short cuts and quick fixes that have invaded our field. It is a book for psychoanalysts, psychotherapists, teachers in our field, supervisors, and students. It is not a book for child therapists alone. It would be of great value to the therapists of adults who need to know more about this area of life. Jack and Kerry Novick have written a serious, important, and optimistic book, and I welcome their voices to the discussion of this important area of clinical work.

References

Diana Siskind is a psychoanalyst and psychoanalytic therapist whose practice encompasses the treatment of children and adults, as well as supervision. She is the author of several books and is coeditor of Understanding Adoption: Clinical Work with Adults, Children, and Parents (reviewed in the Fall 2006 issue of this newsletter). She lives in New York City.

President's Message, continued from page 1...

as well as law, business, economics, industrial relations, and philosophy. (Examine the bibliography of the next professional article you are reading to see what disciplines the author has cited.) Dr. Cheung also analyzed which disciplines cited selected social work journals most frequently during this same period, 1981–1985. After social work, the top 5 out of 46 disciplines that cite social work articles were education, family studies, clinical psychology, psychiatry, and sociology.

Among Cheung’s findings was that social work has used an interdisciplinary approach in the areas of practice, treatment, research, administration, and education. Social work “has based its knowledge on these disciplines, enabling the application of information with supporting evidence that ensures the validity of its knowledge” and reinforces its own (social work) base. Another finding was that the interdisciplinary approach of social work assists in the expansion of knowledge and exchange of information with other disciplines. “The interdisciplinary focus is not a one-way process of borrowing but a reciprocal process with other disciplines.”

Consequently, social work as well as clinical social work has a pluralistic conceptual base which is reflected in the broad range of theories and treatment modalities on which our approach to person-in-situation rests. As psychodynamic clinicians, we exchange knowledge not only with the other mental health disciplines but with sociology, gerontology, economics, women’s studies as well as political science, a partial list. Our conference program and speaker choices reflect our continued commitment to an expanded interdisciplinary knowledge base and our willingness to borrow and lend information across artificial barriers.

Briefly returning to my professor of patterns of practice, I cannot help but note: One of the concepts Freud and his daughter, Anna, wrote about was the psychological defense of doing and undoing. And here, perhaps is a classic example. On the one hand, verbal references to Freud were forbidden. On the other, articles documenting openness to ideas from other fields were required reading. Freud dead? I think not.

Reference

Correction to From the President, Fall 2006

Clarification regarding the formation of NASW: Article indicated ten separate membership associations formed NASW on October 1, 1955. It was seven. Five were formal professional associations: the American Association of Psychiatric Social Workers (AAPSW), the American Association of Social Workers (AASW), the American Association of Medical Social Workers (AAMSW), the National Association of School Social Workers (NASSW), and the American Association of Group Workers (AAGW); two were still informal study groups: the Association for the Study of Community Organization (ASCO) and the Social Work Research Group (SWRG).

www.nmcop.org Winter 2007 NMCOP Newsletter
Orange County, California
Karen K. Redding, LCSW, PhD, Chair

A new Committee on Psychoanalysis in Clinical Social Work chapter is starting in Orange County, California, with the energies of eight women who have come together in the past year, including Karen K. Redding, LCSW, PhD, who will serve as chairperson; Barbara Manalis, LCSW, who will serve as Membership chair; Ann Stern, MFT, treasurer; Paula Clark, MFT, secretary; Judy Friesen, LCSW; Graciela Rodriguez, LCSW, PsyD; Karen Smirl, MFT; and Kim Khazeni, LCSW. As a group, we have done several seminars in the past year under the wing of Ellen Ruderman, PhD, and the Southern California area committee. The first seminar, which occurred on February 4, 2006, was entitled “Reflections on Aging and a Life Well Lived: A Conversation with Renowned Psychoanalyst and Activist Hedda Bolgar at 96.” As Dr. Hedda Bolgar has set an extraordinary standard as a psychoanalyst for almost a century, her perspectives on being an aging and still-practicing psychoanalyst are unparalleled. Karen Redding, LCSW, PhD, conducted an interview with her that attracted more than 80 people across different disciplines, including many mothers and daughters. The response was overwhelmingly enthusiastic.

The newly forming Orange County Chapter of the NMCOP presented its second seminar on Saturday, October 28, 2006, at the Orange County campus of the USC School of Social Work. The seminar, entitled “Exploring the Effects of Patient Termination on the Life of the Clinician,” focused on the effects that our relationships with patients have on our lives. This seminar consisted of a panel of three clinicians who highlighted how amazing things can happen in the safety of the consulting room where we, too, may be transformed through the work that we do—by how we experience and are met by those with whom we keep. Original papers were presented by Barbara Manalis, LCSW; Judy Friesen, LCSW; and Ann Stern, MFT; with Karen Redding, LCSW, PhD, serving as both the moderator and discussant. Evaluations of this event were both enthusiastic and positive, suggesting a readiness among Orange County clinicians for more psychoanalytic gatherings of this nature. Four members of this newly formed chapter (Redding, Friesen, Rodriguez, and Smirl) will be presenting a paper as a panel at the upcoming NMCOP conference in Chicago in March 2007. We are off to a strong start and look forward to enhancing our creative energies as a group. We plan to create two Orange County professional venues in the spring and fall of 2007.

New York
Penny Rosen, MSW, Chair
rosenpmsw@aol.com • 212.721.7010

On Sunday, October 15, 2006, a successful members meeting was held for a second time on Long Island. Roslyn Goldner, LCSW, and Muriel Morris, MD, presented their paper “Adoption Fantasies: A Psychoanalytic Understanding of Edward Albee’s The Play About the Baby.” They focused on the fantasy life of Albee’s title character, an adopted child, with his thoughts about himself and his two sets of parents, brought to life in the creative work itself. The presenters highlighted the conflicts and predicaments that result for an adopted child, as represented by Albee, who himself was adopted. Audience participation led to a stimulating discussion with Joyce Edward as moderator and co-organizer. The event was warmly hosted by Monica Rawn at her home.

In expanding our organization’s framework, it’s time to welcome both Janet Burak, as the NY membership liaison to our membership chair, John Chiaramonte, and Barbara O’Connor, as the NY legislative liaison to our legislative chair, Marsha Wineburgh.

Southern California
Joan Rankin, PsyD, MSW, Chair

In March, we bid farewell to Ellen Ruderman, our area chair for the past 18 years, and welcome Joan Rankin as our new area chair. Following is an introduction from Joan:

First of all I want to say how pleased and excited I am about my stepping up as area chair in March of 2007. Although, it is a daunting task indeed to fill the shoes of Ellen Ruderman, our Southern California area chair for 18 years. She is a giant in my eyes who has also been a mentor, an editor, and a friend. Ellen will remain on the committee, which is good in that she will be able to
When Socrates declared “the unexamined life is not worth living,” he made a powerful statement about the process of inquiry that contributes to a meaningful life. For Socrates, this process was a special type of conversation through which meaning and self-knowledge were discovered. The creative and transformative qualities of examining a life are at the heart of the psychoanalytic endeavor and will be the theme of the 10th NMCOP Conference. The process of inquiry will be discussed by a group of internationally known plenary speakers as well as in panel discussions, papers, and workshops by experts in the field.
Pre-Conference

MENOT SITUATIONS IN SUPERVISION
MODERATOR: Jeffrey Applegate, PhD
Sponsored by the NMCOP Study Group
Co-Chaired by Eda Goldstein, DSW and David Phillips, PhD

THURSDAY, 03.08

8 – 9am
REGISTRATION
9 – 9:15am
INTRODUCTORY REMARKS
9:15 – 12:30
P1 Contemporary Theoretical Frameworks for Psychoanalytic Supervision
PAPER
Dennis Miehls, PhD
P2 Help Me Navigate My VPTSD: Supervising the Vicariously Traumatized Therapist
PAPER
Mary Jo Barrett, MSW
P3 The Problematic Supervisee: Empathic Intervention
PAPER
Jill Gardner, PhD
12.30 – 2pm
LUNCH BREAK
2 – 4pm
P4 FEATURED SPEAKER
COUNTERTRANSFERENCE IN THE FACE OF THE IMPOSSIBLE: JENNIFFER MELFI’S TREATMENT OF TONY SOPRANO
Philip Ringstrom, PhD
Using the HBO series “The Sopranos,” Dr. Ringstrom explores Dr. Jennifer Melfi’s countertransference reactions as she works with Tony Soprano. Though fictional, it captures extraordinary moments when the therapist is taxed to her limit treating the virtually impossible patient.
4 – 7pm
EVENING BREAK
7 – 9.30pm
P5 FEATURED SPEAKER
LIFETIME ACHIEVEMENT AWARDS
Constance Goldberg, MSW
given by Eda Goldstein, DSW
Diana Siskind, MSW
given by David Phillips, PhD
P6 FEATURED SPEAKER
SOME THOUGHTS ON THE PSYCHOLOGY OF SUPERVISION
Nancy McWilliams
It’s critical for supervisors to appreciate clinicians’ transferences, especially vulnerability to shame. Attention will be paid to paranoid and masochistic dynamics in the supervisee and narcissistic dynamics for both participants.

Conference

FRIDAY, 03.09

7.30 – 9am
CONFERENCE REGISTRATION
9 – 10.30am
PLENARY SESSION
IMPROVISATIONAL MOMENTS IN THE CLINICAL PROCESS
Philip Ringstrom, PhD
Dr. Ringstrom examines unpredictable, unmediated sequences in psychotherapy when therapist and patient emerge as “characters” in one another’s scene, resulting in unimaginable outcomes. He’ll also discuss the cultivation of such improvisational moments versus shutting them down.
10.45am – 12.15pm
FEATURED SPEAKER
1 CAN THE EXAMINED LIFE BE SAVED IN A CONSUMERIST CULTURE?
Nancy McWilliams, PhD
Although current culture is antithetical to the examined life, psychoanalytic thinking might counteract pervasive despair. Suggestions address the correction of misperceptions and reclamation of the radical potential of the psychoanalytic project.
2 Clinical & Cultural Perspectives on Inter-national Adoption:
Africa, China, and Russia
PANEL
Diana Siskind, MSW
Susan Sherman, DSW
Maribeth Rourke, MSW
Kathleen Husson, MSW
3 Psychoanalytic Reflections on Social Care
PANEL PRESENTATION
Joel Kantor, MSW
Judy Ann Kaplan, MSW
William Meyer, MSW
4 From Confusion to Meaning: the Process of Child Psychotherapy
PANEL
Marcia Adler, MA
Lynn Bonorstein, MSW
Erika Schmidt, MSW
Peter Shaft, MSW
5 Life Review and its Intergenerational Therapeutic Impact
PAPER
Ellen Luepker, MSW
6 Unconscious Fantasies & Creativity
WORKSHOP
Richard Karpe, MS, LCSW
7 Social Work Education & Clinical Learning
CLINICAL SOCIAL WORK ASSOCIATION
Anne Sigall, MSW
Golnar Simpson, DSW
Jay Williams, PhD
8 Genocide in Rwanda: The Schizoid Position Made Manifest
STUDENT COMPETITION HONOR AWARD
Boris Thomas, JD, MSW
9 Transformations in the Key of an Examined Life
PAPER
Sharon Karp-Lewis, MSW
10 The Current Elements of Theory, Practice, and Technique Within Our Profession that Contribute to the Examined Life
PAPER
Sylvia Teitelbaum, MSW
12.15 – 1.45pm
LUNCH ON YOUR OWN
GENERAL MEMBERSHIP MEETING OF THE NMCOP. 12:30-1:30 PM
BYU Lunch
1.45 – 3.15pm
FEATURED SPEAKERS
11 PSYCHODYNAMIC DIAGNOSTIC MANUAL
Nancy McWilliams, PhD
Joseph Palombo, MA
Judy Ann Kaplan, MSW
12 A Case Presentation of an Adult Analysis from a Developmental Perspective: The Recognition Process and Interactive Regulation & Repair
SMITH COLLEGE ALUMNI
Nancy Bridges, MSW
13 Marriage: Prison or Playground
PAPER
Vella K. Frost, MSW
14 The Mind-Body Space: Creating a Psychic Skin for the Analytic Couple
PAPER
Dori Otadua Dubin, PsyD
15 Poetic License: Mourning—a Parallel Process
NEW DIRECTIONS WRITERS WORKSHOP
Sheila Felderbaum, MSW, APRN
Peter Shaft, MSW
16 Crying is a Two-Person Behavior: A Relational Perspective on Attachment Theory
PAPER
Judith Kay Nelson, PhD

Winter 2007 NMCOP Newsletter www.nmcop.org
24 i n and Out of enactments: a relational
Freud, the dream, and the Thin Blue Line
Samoan Barish, PhD
r . Dennis Shelby, PhD
Veronica Abney, PhD
P aP Er
Carol Tosone, PhD
Paula Shatsky, MFT
r osalyn Benitez-Bloch, DSW
Ellen Ruderman, PhD
P aP Er
26 Psychoanalysis in a Chaotic World:
Golnar Simpson, PhD
P aP Er
25
23 The Healing Power of the Motherhood Constellation
PAPER
Miriam Price, MSW
Laura Eskloff, MA
24 In and Out of enactments: A Relational
Perspective on the Short and Long-Term Treatment of Substance Abuse
PAPER
Carol Garrier, PhD
Eric Orinstein, MA
25 The Psychotherapy of an Unknown Face
PAPER
Golnaz Simpson, PhD
26 Psychoanalysis in a Chaotic World:
Political, Cultural and Ethical Considerations
PANEL
Ellen Kuterman, PhD
Roslyn Benitez-Bloch, DSW
Paula Shatsky, MFT
Carol Tosone, PhD
Billie Lee Violette, MSW, PsyD
27 African-American Psychoanalysts in the United States: Their Stories and Presence in the Field
PAPER
Veronica Abney, PhD
Samoa Barish, PhD
28 Freud, the Dream, and the Thin Blue Line
PAPER
r . Dennis Shelby, PhD
29 Personal Musings on Mourning . . .
With Aaron
Joan Rankin, PsyD, LCSW
PAPER
Marine R. Atkins, MSW
30 Off the Couch: Analysis in Motion
PAPER
31 Assessing and Understanding Adolescents
Who Threaten Violence in Schools
Stuart Twemlow, MD
Dr. Akhtar will explain the way in which psycho-al analysis resembles two people writing a poem and how in writing a poem one is doing psychoanalysis.
32 Psychoanalysis: Where Have We Been and Where Are We Going?
Judy Ann Kaplan, MSW
Judith F. Logue, PhD
Richard Fox, MD
PAPER
Prudence Gourguechon, MD
33 The Transformation of Deadness to Human Relatedness:
A Case Presentation
Karin Baker, MSW
Anne Segall, MSW
Jerrold Brandell, PhD
PAPER
34 Third Space Activities and Interpersonal Change Processes: An Exploration of Ideas from Psychoanalytic and Social Theories
Elizabeth King Keenan, PhD
Dansis Meichis, PhD
PAPER
35 Life Stages and the Blind Curves They Hand You: From Dynamism
to Vulnerability
Ellen Kuterman, PhD
36 Mindsharing: Transitional Objects and Selfobjects as Complementary Functions
PAPER
Joseph Palombo, MA
37 Discovering the Capacity to Hope:
Contemporary Use of the Classics
PAPER
Robert Ann Shechter, DSW
38 The Use of 9/11 as a Container
for Hatred and Aggression
Kiri Sarasohn, MSW
39 The Experience of Analyzing a Person with Psychotic Anxieties
Billie Lee Violette, MSW
40 Supervision: An Under and Overview from the Standpoint of a Psychoanalytic Candidate
Margaret Debrat, MSW
12 – 2.15pm
LUNCH
WRITING THE UNTHINKABLE
Lynda Barry
Is playing with dolls like writing a novel? Are both like listening to a joke? At the center of everything creatively experienced is something alive. While adults call it ‘the arts’, it’s ‘playing’ when about children. Is the connection between playing and mental health only for children? Is this why grown-ups are crazy? Is therapy play for adults?
2.30 – 4pm
41 ESSAYS, HONOR AWARD
A Failure of Curiosity
Janet Middow, MA
The Examined Life of a Psychoanalyst’s Wife
Jane L. Schwartz, RN, PhD
Seeing and Being Seen:
Courage and the Therapist
Boris Thomas, JD, MSW
I Belong
Maryann Hazan Newman, PhD
42 Winnicott and the Therapeutic Alliance in Cross Cultural Therapy
Kathryn Basham, PhD
Eunying Lee, MSW
43 Home is Where One Starts From:
An Analysis of a Homeless Child
Ann Smolen, MSS
44 Write Right: Successful Strategies for Professional Publication
Carol Tosone, PhD
Jeffrey Applegate, PhD
Joel Kanter, MSW
Jerrold Brandell, PhD

www.nmcop.org Winter 2007 NMCOP Newsletter
45 Mutual Discoveries Emerging Out of Secrets, Lies, Deceptions & Truths
PAPER
Linda G. Preel, LCSW

46 Activity & Passivity & Gay Men: A View from Self Psychology
PAPER
R. Dennis Shelley, PhD

47 Relationships Between Parental Representations and Reproduction of Institutionalization in Bulgaria
PAPER
Galina Markova, PhD

48 The ‘Mother’ Returns to Psychoanalysis: Sandor Ferenczi, Welcome Home
PAPER
William S. Meyer, MSW

49 Building an Intensive Treatment Intervention for At-Risk Young Children Presenting with Aggressive and Disruptive Behaviors, Using Primary Research to Identify Clinical Training and Evaluation Processes
WORKSHOP
Anne K. Dearnly, PhD

50 Time is Weightless and Heavy Hearted: The Impact of a Caregiver on Family and Psyche
PAPER
Rosalyn Benitez-Bloch, DSW

4.15 – 5.45pm

52 When Spouses Stray... the Developmental Affair
PANEL
Samoa Barish, PhD
Bonnie Bearson, MSW
Muriel Kessler, MSW
Lynn Rosenfeld, MSW
Susan Spiegel, PhD

53 A Re-Consideration of the Therapeutic Action of Play in the Treatment of Children
PAPER
Alan J. Levy, DSW

54 The Examined Life as Experienced through Four Lenses of a Weekly Consultation Group
PANEL
Karen Redding, PhD
Judy Friesen, MSW
G.P. Rodriguez, PsyD, LCSW
Karen M. Smith, MFT

55 Incongruities in Early Relationship Leading to a Confused Sense of Self
PAPER
Joan Dasteel, PhD, PsyD

56 Moving from Eclectic to Effective and Avoiding the Deathtrap: Reconciling Psychoanalytic Practice with Psychotherapy Outcomes Research—Evidence-Based Practice versus Practice-Based Evidence-Based Practice
PAPER
Andrew Pollack, MSW
Daniel Buccino, MSW

57 FILM, FEELING & FORMULATION
4.05 – 6.30 PM
Salmon Akhtar, MD

58 Examining Spirituality in the Clinical Process
PAPER
Judith Aronson, MA

59 Staying Put in the Closet: Examining Clinical Practice and Countertransference Issues in Work with Homosexual Men Married to Heterosexual Women
PAPER
Lawrence J. Atwell, MS

60 Judith Mishne, Clinician, Teacher, and Scholar
MEMORIAL PANEL & RECEPTION
Jerrold Brandell, PhD
Faye Mishra, PhD
Eda Goldstein, DSW
Joseph Palombo, MA

61 Creating a Patient: The Challenge of Multiple Experts
INSTITUTE FOR CLINICAL SOCIAL WORK
PAPER AND RECEPTION
Constance Goldberg, MS

SUNDAY, 03.11

9am – 12pm
PLENARY SESSION
PSYCHOANALYSIS AS PART OF EVERYDAY LIFE: PERSONAL, CLINICAL AND SOCIAL REFLECTIONS
Salmon Akhtar, MD
Stuart Twemlow, MD
Kimberlyn Leary, PhD

ABOUT NMCOP
When Crayton Rowe conducted a survey of New York City psychoanalytic training programs in 1975, the results were astonishing. It showed that while social workers were the highest percentage of graduates, only a small number were given the opportunity to teach or supervise. In May, 1980 at a meeting of the Clinical Social Work Federation (then NFSCSW) Crayton became the founder and first President of the National Membership Committee on Psychoanalysis in Clinical Social Work. It remained a committee within the Federation for 10 years before becoming its own independent corporation in 1990. From the beginning, NMCOP’s main aim was the achievement of parity with other mental health disciplines. Now, more than 25 years later, with members from across the country, NMCOP has gained recognition for its outstanding educational programs as well as its achievements in standard setting and advocacy on behalf of clinical social work practitioners of psychoanalysis and for clinical social workers working from a psychoanalytic perspective.

CONFERENCE LOCATION
SWISSÔTEL CHICAGO, 323 E. WACKER DRIVE

NMCOP is proud to present its 10th national conference at the Swissotel Chicago. For the second consecutive year, the hotel has been named by Travel and Leisure as ‘One of the 500 Best Hotels in the World’ and ‘One of the Six Best Hotels in the State of Illinois.’ Swissotel Chicago is an all-glass triangular hotel, wedged into the confluence of the Chicago River and Lake Michigan and has fabulous wrap-around views from Navy Pier to Grant Park. The hotel’s personalized service and luxurious accommodations, along with its European elegance, should provide the perfect setting for a memorable conference weekend.
FEATURING SPEAKERS

SALMON AKHTAR, MD, is professor of psychiatry at Jefferson Medical College and Training and supervising analyst at the Psychoanalytic Center of Philadelphia. Dr. Akhtar is a Fellow of the American Psychiatric Association and the American College of Psychoanalysts. He is the author of over 200 articles and several books. He most recently authored The Alphabet of Psychoanalysis (in press) and edited Severe Personality Disorders, The Crescent and the Couch and Space and Intuition, all in press. He is a scholar-in-residence at the Interact Theatre Company in Philadelphia and has published six volumes of poetry.

LYNDA BARRY is a writer and cartoonist whose work has appeared all over tarnation.

PHILLIP RINGSTROM, PHD, is a training and supervising analyst at the Institute of Contemporary Psychoanalysis in Los Angeles, California, and a founding member of the board of directors of the International Association for Relational Psychoanalysis and Psychotherapy. He is a member of the International Council of Self Psychologists and is currently engaged in full-time private practice in Encino, California.

NANCY McWILLIAMS, PhD, is on the faculty of the Institute for Psychoanalysis and Psychotherapy of New Jersey, and the National Training Program in Contemporary Psychotherapy. She was an associate editor for the Psychodynamic Diagnostic Manual, and author of Psychoanalytic Therapy: A Practitioner’s Guide. In addition to her teaching Dr. McWilliams maintains a private practice of psychoanalysis and psychotherapy in Flemington, N.J.

KIMBERLY LEARY, PhD, is an associate professor of psychology at Harvard Medical School, holds faculty appointments at the Boston Psychoanalytic Institute and the Psychoanalytic Institute of New England, and maintains a private practice. Her research and teaching are directed at enhancing effective clinical practice and consideration of the role of race and ethnicity in clinical and organizational settings. She has lectured nationwide and is the author of numerous publications. Dr. Leary is the recipient of the 2007 Ernst and Gertrude Ticho Award of American Psychoanalytic Association.

STUART TWEMLOW, MD, is the medical director of the Hope Program, director of the Peaceful Schools and Communities Project of the Child and Family Program at The Menninger Clinic. He is a professor of psychiatry at the Menninger Department of Psychiatry & Behavioral Sciences and a faculty member of the Houston-Galveston Psychoanalytic Institute. Dr. Twemlow has written extensively about understanding and intervening in the roots of violence in communities, institutions and interpersonal situations. He co-edited a volume of papers titled Analysts in the Trenches: Streets, Schools, War Zones and he co-authored Creating a Peaceful School Learning Environment: A Program for Elementary Schools. He is a founding editor of The International Journal of Applied Psychoanalytic Studies.
Registration Information

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Name</th>
<th>Degree</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Address</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>City</td>
<td>State</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Daytime Phone</td>
<td>Evening Phone</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>FAX</td>
<td>EMAIL</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Please Check all applicable

- [ ] Please check here if you are currently not a member of NMCOP, but would like to have a free membership for 2007 as part of your registration at this conference.
- [ ] Please check here if you would like to attend a welcome for new professionals (first five years after MSW graduation).

Please Indicate Registration Category*

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Early</th>
<th>Standard</th>
<th>Door</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>NMCOP Member</td>
<td>$275</td>
<td>$300</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Non-Members</td>
<td>$280</td>
<td>$340</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Student with lunch</td>
<td>$135</td>
<td>$140</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Student without lunch</td>
<td>$85</td>
<td>$90</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

*Conference registration fee includes Saturday luncheon and Thursday night reception, except for student discounted rates.

Payment Information

Summary of Enclosed Payments or Charges

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Conference and/or Pre-Conference Registration Fee</th>
<th>$</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>(See fees at left. Conference fee includes Saturday lunch and Thursday night reception. Student registration does not include Saturday luncheon.)</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Saturday Luncheon</th>
<th>$</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>(Student registration only, $50)</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Friday Evening Supper — Bin 36</th>
<th>$</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>($75 per person, limited availability)</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>CEU Fee</th>
<th>$</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>($10. This program is approved to provide CE credit to social workers. Credit is also applicable to LCPCs in Illinois.)</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Total | $ |

Where did you hear about the conference?

- [ ] COP Newsletter
- [ ] State Society Newsletter
- [ ] Direct Mail
- [ ] Your Institute
- [ ] NMCOP website listserve
- [ ] Other (please specify) | |

Payment Type

- [ ] Check Enclosed, made payable to NIPE (Preferred)
- [ ] Visa
- [ ] Mastercard

Payment Details

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Card Number</th>
<th>Exp. Date</th>
</tr>
</thead>
</table>

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Name</th>
<th></th>
</tr>
</thead>
</table>

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Address</th>
<th></th>
</tr>
</thead>
</table>

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>City</th>
<th>State</th>
<th>Zip</th>
</tr>
</thead>
</table>

Signature (as on card)

Mail This Registration Form and Payments To:

Betty Melton & Associates
6912 Main Street, Suite 10
Downers Grove, IL 60516

Registration Questions?

Please call (630) 241-2363 or e-mail bmeltonassoc@earthlink.net

Cancellation Policy

Refunds (less $50 admin fee) will be granted only upon written request postmarked on or before 3/1/07. Visit www.nmcop.org for full conference details help me come up to speed as area chair in Southern California, as well as continue to offer us her years of rich experience.

My earliest experience with social work occurred when I was about eight years old, as my mother pressed a ten dollar bill in my hand to run and give to the deaf mute neighbor who was collecting bottles to help pay for food for his family. While my mother was a school teacher, she was the first person to teach me the value of helping others, as well as helping me realize that I could be grateful for what I had. I credit her with my introduction to social work.

Fast forwarding twenty years, I began my Master’s in Clinical Social Work at UCLA, in 1984, studying under the tutelage of Jean Sanville, Ellen Ruderman, and Phil Ringstrom, among others. These were my teachers of Freud, psychoanalytic work in clinical social work, and the importance of group process.

The minute I graduated from UCLA, in 1986, I was introduced to the NMCOP by Jean Sanville, who encouraged me to attend the lectures and paper presentations to support and enrich my psychoanalytic interests as applied to psychotherapy. At the same time, I was encouraged to participate in the Psychosocial Project, sponsored by the CICSW, now known as the Sanville Institute, offering psychotherapy to women for free, in exchange for supervision with Janette Alexander, Joan Dasteel, and Adele Frye. I have been so fortunate to benefit from the wealth of wisdom of clinical social workers who I admire. I feel great remorse that the psychoanalytic courses in social work have all but disappeared from most social work graduate schools in California. It makes it more important that the NMCOP in Southern California continue to provide a forum for clinicians to offer papers or workshops of interest to social work psychotherapists and psychoanalysts to enhance their work with patients.

My practice is mainly an adult and adolescent practice, and while I have a few specialties, in fertility and chemical dependency, I prefer to see a broad range of patients, usually in individual or couple modalities. I also have extensive experience in group therapy.

My most recent accomplishment is obtaining a PsyD in Psychoanalysis from the Institute of Contemporary Psychoanalysis in Los Angeles, where I have been a candidate representative on the board of directors for two years, as well as social committee chair for three years. While at ICP, I published my first article entitled “The New Reproductive Technologies: A Mixed Blessing,” which appeared in the book Women in Transition, edited by Jean Sanville and Ellen Ruderman.

I look forward to the NMCOP conference in Chicago in March 2007, where I will offer my paper called “Musings on Mourning . . . With Aaron.” It is a work of passion that attempts to capture all that happened between me and my patient, both verbally and non-verbally, as we stumble through a four-month period immediately following my father’s death in 2004, ultimately to the benefit of us both. The writing style I use is intended to help clinicians think about how we write about our patients in this complex, bi-directional relational field of contemporary psychoanalysis.

I really look forward to being a part of a conversation that helps articulate what it means to be a psychoanalytic social worker; as out president, Marcia Wineburgh, calls it, Psychoanalysis: Clinical Social Work Style!

See you all in March!

~ Joan Rankin, PsyD, MSW
Southern California Area Chair

REM E M B E R I N G

Joyce Aronson

Joyce Aronson died on December 29, 2006, in her home in New York City after a very long illness. She was an active member of the NMCOP and presented papers at several of our conferences. She wrote two books: The Dynamic Psychotherapy of Anorexia and Bulimia and The Use of the Telephone in Psychotherapy. Naturally, both of these fine books were reviewed in this Newsletter.

Those of us who knew Joyce well will remember her as being an accomplished and talented psychoanalyst, and a beautiful and gracious woman who loved her family and her friends. Joyce was deeply invested in her profession, always reading and studying, attending seminars and lectures, and serving on boards and committees. She was able to balance an exceptionally productive professional life with a satisfying family life that included, to her unending delight, her beloved grandchildren. At her memorial service on January 7, 2007, friends and relatives took turns sharing their memories of Joyce, and of course her intelligence and sensitivity were traits mentioned by everyone as was her extraordinary generosity and kindness. She will be very much missed.

~ Diana Siskind, MSW
standing of Leonardo and his Mona Lisa. Psychoanalysis as a public health endeavor was presented and a consultant to the Peace Corps described a poignant film she helped produce of five Peace Corps members who contracted HIV while on mission and the lessons they had learned—to benefit future Peace Corps volunteers. Psychoanalysis and contemporary art was examined with a focus on the transition from representational art to the abstract expression of emotions using color, and the place that free association and dreams have played in modern and postmodern art.

In the third panel on the significance of psychoanalysis to modern life, the chair proclaimed that “Freud is on everybody’s mind” and gave evidence backing up her statement. “And yet how many of the brightest 10,000 students are going to study and practice psychoanalysis?” Reasons for this situation were debated in the discussion that followed. An analyst originally from India gave her unique cultural perspective on psychoanalysis in her native country. This was followed by a case report of a patient in New York who originated from a “primitive” South American culture and how the elements of this temporal factor were bridged in her treatment. One of the speakers addressed the “dark side” and spoke on brutality, and gave evidence that Freud’s concept of the death instinct is all too alive and well in modern times.

The final panel addressed the issue of psychoanalysis and modern conflicts. The Iraq War, 9/11, and Bush’s reign were examined. The Arab-Israeli conflict was viewed through a psychoanalytic lens, followed by a powerfully pessimistic presentation on how pervasive childhood mistreatment and individual and national humiliation have come to be writ large on the world stage by people and nations who will soon be in a position to wreak unimaginable nuclear destruction. A discussion period followed each of the panels. The embassy has put the complete transcripts of all the talks on its website.

After the afternoon session, there was a tremendous feeling of satisfaction and good will expressed by many of the participants with promises to find a way to repeat this kind of experience again. It was thought to be the first time that all four analytic groups had gotten together in such a friendly and collegial fashion under one roof. The format guaranteed that there would be no long boring talks (only short boring talks!)—and most of the presentations were quite good to riveting. Following the afternoon session and before the evening speakers, the embassy provided a buffet dinner and dessert in the grand hall.

The evening session was open to the public. It was graciously moderated by Ambassador Nowotny. In addition to Drs. Zaretsky and Aichhorn, speakers included Drs. Sheila Hafter Gray, Harold Blum, Nancy McWilliams, Miriam Pierce, and John Kafka. The talks were followed by a reception for all, featuring wine, juice, and hors d’oeuvres. The evening panel and reception was a fitting end to a memorable day. Freud would have been pleased with his birthday celebration.

---

NMCOP Memberships

Looking for a unique and meaningful gift for colleagues on those special occasions—personal appreciation or professional recognition, graduation, honors, birthdays, holidays? Then consider extending the gift of membership! Gift Memberships are available for $15.00/one year* to introduce prospective members to any of the four categories of NMCOP membership. To activate your gift(s):

1. complete an NMCOP application form in the name of the recipient(s);
2. check the appropriate level of membership and note that this is a Gift Membership;
3. add your name and basic contact information;
4. enclose your check for $15.00 per Gift Membership made out to NMCOP. A card will be sent to the recipient from NMCOP announcing your gift.

The number of colleagues you may honor is unlimited. With members like you, NMCOP is well positioned to continue to grow, and we definitely are growing!

* Gift Memberships can be used only once per new member, who then will be invited to renew her/his membership for subsequent years.
Aims & Purposes of the NMCOP

- To further the understanding of psychoanalytic theory and practice within the profession of social work and to the public.
- To promote a unique and special identity for all social work professionals engaged in psychoanalytically informed practice.
- To work for equal recognition and professional parity for qualified psychoanalysts and psychoanalytic psychotherapists in social work with other mental health disciplines through education, legislation, and collaboration with other disciplines.
- To effect a liaison with other disciplines identifying themselves with the theory and practice of psychoanalysis.
- To advocate for the highest standards of practice in mental health to assure access and quality for all in need of care.

New Professionals Mentorship Program

The NMCOP New Professionals Committee is pleased to announce our Mentorship Program. We are seeking seasoned professionals with eight or more years post-licensure to work with our new professionals to help with career development and career enhancement.

We are also looking for new professionals interested in this form of guidance and direction.

For further information, please contact Bob Adams at 708.567.4075 or via e-mail at bobadams@mshv.org.

Supporting the NMCOP...

By using the NMCOP’s Amazon Associates link, your purchases help the organization financially through a portion of the proceeds being returned to us. It’s simple to use: (1) go to our website at www.nmcop.org; (2) click on the amazon.com logo on the homepage to activate our link; and (3) purchase your selections. The Amazon Associates benefit to NMCOP is calculated automatically when—and only when—utilizing this link. The program works for all types of purchases through amazon.com (non-members are “welcome” to help us by going through the NMCOP link as well!).

Earn continuing education credits online!

http://www.psychoanalyticce-credit.com
Psychoanalytic Sites on the Web...

www.nmcop.org
National Membership Committee on Psychoanalysis in Clinical Social Work

www.psybc.com
PsyBC — Symposia with panel discussions of psychoanalytic papers

www.apsa.org
American Psychoanalytic Association

www.psychoanalysis.net
The Psychoanalytic Connection—Internet services for psychoanalytic organizations including panel discussions in conjunction with JAPA & the Analytic Press

www.psychematters.com
A collection of information for psychotherapists

Seeking News from Our Members...

Contact the Newsletter with YOUR news. We’d love to hear from you!

The Newsletter also welcomes readers’ letters, articles, and opinions on topics of the day, clinical issues, book reviews, notices or reports of conferences, and news of interest to our membership.

Deadline for Spring 2007 issue: April 15.

NMCOP—rooted in the past, focused on the present, looking toward the future
2007 Membership Form  Please PRINT legibly

Last Name _____________________________________  First Name _____________________________________

Degree(s)  ____________________________________________________________________________________

Office Phone ___________________________________  Office Extension ______________________________

Home Phone (optional)  __________________________________________________________________________

Cell Phone _____________________________________  Fax Phone ___________________________________

E-mail Address ________________________________________________________________________________

May we include your e-mail address on the NMCOP listserv?   Yes  No
(If you check neither box, we will assume “Yes.”)

Office Address  ________________________________________________________________________________

County ____________________________________________________________________________________

Home Address (optional)  ________________________________________________________________________

Mailing Address ________________________________________________________________________________

Which address(es) should be included in the NMCOP clinical directory?  Office  Home  Both

May we include your information on NMCOP’s new website clinical directory?  Yes  No
(If you check neither box, we will assume “Yes.”)

Graduate School Attended  _______________________________________________________________________

Post-Graduate Training __________________________________________________________________________

Practice Areas

What is your client population? Check all that apply.

Children   Adolescents   Young Adults   Adults   Older Adults   General

In which of the following practice areas do you have special interest? Check all that apply.

Chemical and other addictive behavior   Disordered eating and body image   Mediation

End-of-life care   Critical incident stress debriefing   Forensic evaluation and treatment

With which modalities do you work? Check all that apply.

Individual   Group   Couple   Family   Community

Membership Category  Please make check payable to NMCOP

General ($65)   New Professional ($55)*   Retiree ($55)   Student ($30)   Friend ($55)

* New professionals are MSWs within three years of graduation; this reduced rate may be used twice.

 Please send a photocopy of full-time MSW student ID.

Optional Contribution  Please make check payable to NIPER

A tax-deductible contribution of _________ is enclosed to support NIPER (National Institute for Psychoanalytic Education and Research) and the NMCOP Conference.

Members joining by March 31
will be included in the 2007 Membership Directory

Membership runs from January 1 through December 31 of each year.

Please visit our website at www.nmcop.org.

Mail this form and dues/donation to:
Deborah Dale
NMCOP Administrator
1403 Meadow Lane
Chapel Hill, NC 27516
deborah_dale@mindspring.net

Questions?
Contact:
John Chiaramonte, LCSW
NMCOP Membership Chair
908.918.1192
johncsw1@comcast.com

www.nmcop.org  Winter 2007 NMCOP Newsletter
Directory of 2006–2007 NMCOP Board of Directors

Executive Committee

President
Marsha Wineburgh, DSW
mwineburgh@aol.com • 212.595.6518

President-Elect
Samoan Barish, PhD
SamoanB@verizon.net • 310.396.8274

Past President
Judy Ann Kaplan, MSW, BCD
Judy.Kaplan3@verizon.net • 212.929.0101

Secretary
Karen E. Baker, MSW
kembaker1@comcast.net • 734.996.8185

Treasurer
Terrie Baker, MSW, LCSW
tsb123@mindspring.com • 919.990.1227

Members-At-Large
Penny Rosen, MSW
rosenpmsw@aol.com • 212.721.7010

Ellanor Toomer Cullens, MSW
etcullens2@worldnet.att.net • 404.233.7533

Committees

Consortium Liaison
Barbara Berger, PhD, BCD
bbergerphd@sbcglobal.net • 312.346.7757

Education / CE
Cathy Siebold, DSW
c.siebold@att.net • 917.209.3324

Ellanor Toomer Cullens, MSW
etcullens2@worldnet.att.net • 404.233.7533

Legislative
Marsha Wineburgh, DSW
wwineburgh@aol.com • 212.595.6518

Membership
John Chiaramonte, MSW
johnlcsw1@comcast.net • 908.918.1192

New Professionals
Robert Adams, MSW
LLnrma321@aol.com • 630.916.8401

Newsletter

Donna Tarver, MSSW
dftarver@sbcglobal.net • 214.691.2171

Public Relations / Website Ad-hoc
Ellanor Toomer Cullens, MSW
etcullens2@worldnet.att.net • 404.233.7533

Research
Anne Garity, PhD
geari002@umn.edu • 612.825.7200

Study Group
David Phillips, DSW
dphillips@nyc.rr.com • 212.831.0181

Eda Goldstein, DSW
edagoldstein@nyu.edu • 212.744.7741

Administrator
Deborah Dale
deborah_dale@mindspring.com • 919.933.4055

Listserve Moderator
Joel Kanter, MSW
joelkanter@yahoo.com

Webmaster
Gale Meyer
Wemba12@aol.com

Advisory Board

California (Northern)
Velia Frost, MSW
vkfrost@mac.com • 415.387.9991

California (Orange County)
Karen K. Redding, PhD, LCSW

California (Southern)
Joan Rankin, PsyD, MSW

Colorado
Cathy Krown Buirski, MSW, BCD
ckBuirski@aol.com • 303.388.7267

Connecticut
George Hagman, MSW
hagman@optonline.net • 203.293.3033

National Membership Committee on Psychoanalysis in Clinical Social Work, Inc.

NMCOP Newsletter
5924 Royal Lane, Suite 216
Dallas, TX 75230

Greater Washington, DC / Baltimore
Sarah H. Pillsbury, DSW, BCD
Psrarah@aol.com • 202.332.9473

Florida
Ellyn Freedman, MSW
ellynf@aol.com • 305.531.4141

Georgia / Alabama / South Carolina / Tennessee
Ellanor Toomer Cullens, MSW
etcullens2@worldnet.att.net • 404.233.7533

Illinois / Indiana
Sidney Miller, PhD
milpro@aol.com • 312.443.1194

Massachusetts
Margaret Frank, MSSW
Pegfrank@aol.com • 617.965.3315

Emery Gross
emerygr@aol.com • 212.460.8553

Michigan / Ohio
Karen E. Baker, MSW
kembaker1@comcast.net • 734.996.8185

Minnesota
Hilde Gasiorowicz, MSW
hgasior@aol.com • 612.871.8344

Beverly Caruso, MSW
bevcaruso@mn.rr.com • 952.920.6568

New Jersey
Wendy Winograd, MSW
wendywinograd@gmail.com • 201.919.0108

New York
Penny Rosen, MSW
rosenpmsw@aol.com • 212.721.7010

North Carolina
William Meyer, MSW, BCD
meyer017@mc.duke.edu • 919.681.6840

Terrie Baker, MSW, LCSW
tsb123@mindspring.com • 919.990.1227

Washington State
Sal Ziz, MSW
salziz@speakeasy.net • 206.529.1164

Diane Grisi, MSW, LCSW